

LOVE MY DRESS

A UK Wedding Blog & Style Diary offering daily bridal inspiration...

Weddings... Popular Topics... Search

« The Love My Dress 2010 Reader Survey Needs YOU! ... £750 Prize Up For Grabs.... | Main | Jane Taylor Millinery - New 'Crystal' Ready-To-Wear Bridal Collection... »

Monday, 22 November 2010

A 1940s Style Bride Who Designed Her Own Dress...

Good afternoon! Is this the first time you've stopped by Love My Dress today? If so, you may not yet be aware that I launched the annual Love My Dress reader survey today - and to help encourage responses, I am giving away a prize valued at £750! You can respond to the survey here - it will only take 5 minutes and your comments and feedback are so important - thank you so much :)

For now, let's get back to the issue of weddings :) David and Ruth tied the knot late October this year with a wedding at St Bartholemew's Church in Oakridge Near Stroud in the Cotswolds, chosen, Ruth told me, because it is the prettiest of the four churches that her Father is Vicar of.

This wonderful wedding was photographed beautifully by Nicola of Daffodil Waves Photography and I simply LOVE it! It is full of personality and cute, quirky features, and I just adore that Bride Ruth was inspired by some of my favourite childhood books in styling her day; the Brambly Hedge series. Infact the whole thing really stole my heart :)

Ruth told me about her fabulous dress...

'I designed the dress myself and had it made by Milly Bridal through 'My Wedding Dress For Less'. My Bridesmaid Gemma and I did a lot of searching for the right dress, sadly we couldn't really find anything suitable. There aren't many shops that offer alternative and vintage style dresses outside of London. I was

